Martineau named athletic director

OREGON CITY — Women's basketball coach Jim Martineau has been named the new athletic director at Clackamas Community College.

Martineau replaces Jim Jackson, who recently retired after 18 years at the college.

Martineau's association with CCC dates back to 1989, when he started as a student, playing basketball for the Cougars. After earning his bachelor's degree in health promotion and fitness management at Southern Oregon University, he completed his master's degree in health education at Western Oregon.

Martineau began working at CCC in 1995 as assistant basketball coach and a health and physical education instructor. He became women's head coach in 1998 and a full-time instructor in 2001. Student athletes under Martineau have a 95 percent graduation rate.
